Conservation Practices Help Protect Wild Life

(This is the third and final article of this series, prepared under the direction of our Farm Advisor, Ivan W. Lilley, and Glen E. Paxton, project manager, Placerville Project, Soil Conservation Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture.)

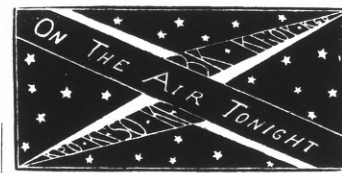

In the Placerville region the cover crops are either permanent or planted annually. Under the latter condition, when an annual cover is used, a system of annual ditches can be installed to take care of the water that does not soak into the ground. By this method added protection is given to the soil in the event the cover makes little growth in the fall before the heavy rains come. The annual ditches are up to 500 feet in length, spaced about 40 feet apart, on approximately a 2 per cent grade, and per range management plans, such as rotated grazing, reseeding, development of water, the proper locations of salt, and others not only tend to produce good forage but also prevent erosion because these practices all tend toward keeping the ground covered with grass. Range lands under proper management do not erode.

Other farming practices designed to control erosion are contour cultivation, that is, always cultivate across the slope, and never go up and down the hill, and use of the Basin Lister. The Basin Lister, which is run approximately on the contour, turns the ground into a series of small basins or holes, in which the rain water stands until it can soak into the ground. Its use has proved to be most effective in deep pervious soils. During the past season, there was no runoff from one orchard on a 15 per cent slope that has been treated with this machine. In addition to using the lister, this rancher also protected his orchard with an annual cover crop.

In conclusion, the farmers whose farms are under co-operative agreement with the U. S. Soil Conservation Service are urged to read the agreement and make plans now to carry out the practices involved that should be used this fall and winter. If any of the terms of the agreement are not clear, the co-operator should feel free to consult the technicians of the Soil Conservation Service.

Farmers, living in the foothill fruit area, who are not familiar with the erosion control practices outlined in these articles, can obtain additional information from either the Farm Advisor or the project manager of the Soil Conservation Service. Visit the Placerville project and see the permanent cover crops, rearranged irrigation systems and other control measures.

GHANDI SEEKS DRY LAW FOR INDIA TO CAP LIFE'S WORK

BOMBAY (AP)—Frail, aging Mahatma Gandhi—he will be 67 in October—hopes to achieve before he dies the crowning dream of his life by making India dry.

He believes he can make it so effective that it will be an example to the world, especially to the United States. "I do not regard the American experiment as a failure," the saint of India declared.

"I do not despair of America once more returning to prohibition with still greater vigor, fervor and better experience in dealing with it."

"It may be that if India carries out prohibition it will hasten its return to the United States. But in India it is easier to suppress drink, for only the minority takes alcohol. Drinking is generally considered as not respectable. There are millions who have never known what drink is."

Desire To Oblige Leads Driver On Long Trip

CENTERVILLE, Mass. (AP)—Carlyle Moore, Jr., stock company actor, wanted to oblige Miss Eleanor King, an actress, by driving her car from New York.

He obtained the keys from Miss King's maid in New York and drove 200 miles to Cape Cod.

Arriving at Centerville, Moore was informed that he had taken the wrong car. He drove right back.

To Bake Perfect Cake, Make Measures Exact

By JUDITH WILSON

"WHY IS IT that you seldom write about cake making or give recipes for unusual cakes?" one of my readers wrote recently. With that prompting, I am giving you today some cake recipes that are favorites with my family.

LUNCHEON

Fresh Fruit Platter

Assorted Sandwiches

Hot Green Apple Pie

Cheese Cubes

Coffee

DINNER

Chilled White Grapes

Chicken Fricassee with Cream

Gravy and Rice

Buttered Beets

String Beans

Angel Cake with Pineapple

Frosting

Remember that you must be accurate in your measures, and follow directions implicitly, if you expect cake to turn out perfectly. Use standard measuring cups and spoons. Sift the flour once before measuring. Too much flour gives a cake a heavy texture—too little flour makes it fall.

CREAM CAKE

4 eggs
1 cup plus 2 tablespoons sugar
1 cup thin cream
1 2/3 cups self-rising cake flour or ordinary 1 very fine plus 2 teaspoons baking powder
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Grated rind of 1 lemon
Put the egg whites in one bowl, yolks in another. Beat the egg whites until stiff but not dry, and beat in 4 tablespoons of the sugar. Beat the egg yolks with the same beater until they are thick and lemon colored. Beat in the remaining sugar, add the cream and the grated lemon rind. Combine with the beaten egg whites then fold in the flour. Add the lemon juice when part of the flour has been folded in. Pour into an ungreased tube pan and bake in a slow oven 55 minutes. This cake is also delicious when baked in two layers and put together with lemon filling. Sprinkle the top with confectioner's sugar.

FUDGE CAKE

1/4 cup butter
1 cup sugar
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
1 cup boiling water
1 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 cup thick buttermilk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 egg
Put the butter, sugar, chocolate and boiling water in the top of a double-boiler, and cook until the butter and chocolate are melted and thoroughly blended. Allow to cool slightly. Sift together the dry ingredients. Add the egg to the chocolate mixture and beat well, then add the sifted flour mixture. Last of all, add the buttermilk and vanilla and blend thoroughly. Pour into a well-greased 8-inch pan that has been lined with waxed paper. Bake in a moderate oven about 35 minutes. Spread thickly with fudge frosting, garnish with walnuts, and cut into diamond shapes.

NEW BUSINESS SURGE IS SEEN BY ECONOMISTS FOR NATION

By FRED BAILEY

United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States still is in the "advancing phase" of the business cycle, despite a lull in industrial output, according to economists of the Department of Agriculture.

The bureau of agricultural economics said that for the remainder of this year, relatively little change in industrial activity is expected, but predicted that "sooner or later the upward movement will be continued."

"In several very important industries, output continues well in excess of new business, but backlogs of orders may be sufficient to keep them going with little more than the usual summer recession until larger volume of new orders is received," the bureau said.

Economists, working under direction of A. G. Black, chief of the bureau, said consumer demand for farm products is expected to be relatively stable during the next few months.

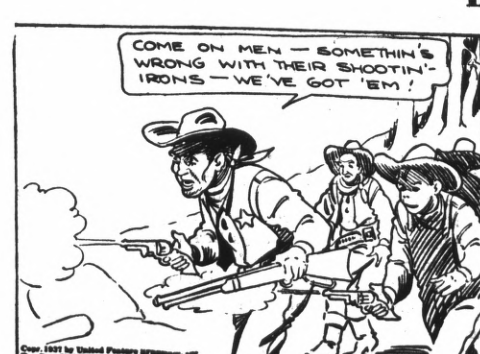

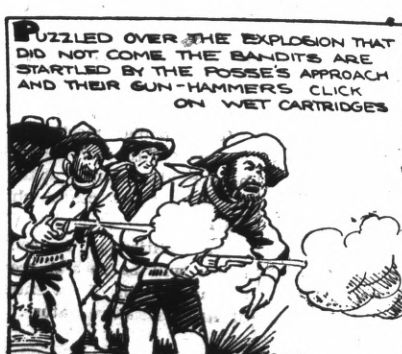

Another activity of the Soil Conservation Service is to increase the game population on the co-operators' farms and ranches. In planting some of the cover crops or woodland plantings types of vegetation are used that will provide food for quail, ring neck pheasants, or other kinds of wildlife.

The control of rodents is an erosion control practice that is effective all the year around. During the irrigation season, considerable soil and water is lost down gopher runways. In the winter time, water flowing in those same runways causes breaks in grade ditches, and starts gullies on cultivated land.

Overgrazing is common on some of the ranges of El Dorado County. Pro-

LEGEND OF TOMBSTONE COLORING UPSET BY STATEMENT

XENIA, O. (P)—A tombstone that "bleeds" at its base has puzzled visitors to the Jamestown cemetery for almost a quarter of a century.

About 22 years ago, residents say, a Jamestown man killed himself at his mother's grave and fell against the tombstone. Ever since, regardless of weather conditions, a reddish liquid resembling blood has oozed from the base.

Officials of a Xenia monument firm say, however, the phenomenon is not "supernatural" but has a simple scientific explanation.

The "blood," they say, is probably nothing more than iron rust seeping from a small opening in the lead capping between the granite stone and its base. The seepage is possibly caused by "sweating" of a sliver of chisel accidentally sealed in the base.

Visitors also have reported the ornamental granite balls, some weighing as much as 1,000 pounds, have "turned around" at times.

A possible reason for this, the firm said, was the uneven melting of ice and snow formed on the lead bases which hold the balls. Over a period of years, with alternate freezes and thaws, the enormous balls have been found to move several inches.

Marriage Fee Is Paid With 1,197 Pennies

KEENE, N. H. (P)—Herbert Erickson and Elizabeth Erenius saved their pennies for a year before they were married.

As a gift for performing the ceremony, they gave the Rev. Willis E. Smith a glass jar containing 1,197 pennies.

El Dorado Lodge No. 26, F. A. A. M., will confer a first degree at its regular meeting on Friday evening, September 17.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Modern-Day Rapid Sports Often Responsible For Certain Forms of Asthma

By CLAUD NORTH CRISMAN, M.D.

"WHENEVER," says Dr. Irving Muskat, "there is definite disease in the nose in association with bronchial asthma, the question of eradication rightly assumes an important consideration."

DR. CRISMAN

He goes on to say that this is no time to be dogmatic about surgery. The tissues of the nose are so immediately exposed to all sorts of bombardment from the outside that a very dark and swollen condition one day may be entirely different at another examination.

Any acute rhinitis is bound to shatter red and angry tissues. To attempt relief by the removal of membranes or other nasal tissue is not justified, though the operation might afford temporary comfort.

There is much to be learned in a careful, detailed study of each case, including its history and the heredity back of it. When the asthmatic affection seems to have originated with the manifestation in the nose, there is better reason for attempting alleviation in the nasal area. Where there are actual growths, as of polyoid character, a conservative operation for relief is indicated.

This is reasonable from the standpoint of securing drainage, insuring cleanliness and providing freer air passage. One hears frequently of curettage of the sinuses, repeated a second and a third time, only to bring disappointment in the end, when the mistreated tissues rebel and wreak their resentment in further misery.

In conditions of chronic nasal allergies, any neglect leads frequently to the involvement of all sinus walls. There is a possible extension to the underlying bone substance, and complete repair and comfortable recovery are well-nigh impossible.

In these days of rapid sports, young people are continually carrying extra kerchiefs about and paying no more attention than that to a thin, watery nasal discharge which is almost sure, some day, to become a source of chronic infection.

The fact that rhinitis and coriza are so often found in asthmatic cases has not proved yet that they are necessarily dependent. That is, neither can exactly be demonstrated as the forerunner of the other. Yet when both are present, they are pretty sure to be the result of the same cause and effect.

There is an undoubted change in the cell unit and the existing cause is the culprit we are after. We go back to the fact that irritations of the respiratory passages can be both physical and chemical, from without and within.

Referring again to the number of popular sports of our day, many of which call for rapid movements, among our young people, especially, we must look for injuries of the nasal bone structure, or a bruise of the lower brow or cheekbone.

In later asthmatic conditions, the seeming slight accident of a previous year may be forgotten. A very small spur of bone may be sufficiently irritating to keep up a discharge or a habit of sneezing.

Among remedies advocated by Dr. Muska are calcium, sodium iodide, thyroin, vaccines and rhinitic peptones. Diathermy, or heat therapy, is being extensively tried, with considerable success. Van Leuwen is advocating the use of tuberculin in all cases of asthma.

Others, like Alexander Francis, contend that asthma is a neurosis and can be relieved only by stabilizing the vaso-motor system. He does this by cauterizing the mucous membranes, thus creating a shock to the vessel walls.

Increased revenue from garbage last year was 5.54 per cent.

MOTIVE POWER PROVIDED BY SEWER GAS THROUGH PWA RESEARCH

WASHINGTON (P)—The Public Works Administration has issued a treatise entitled "Economy Gone Wild," announcing that three PWA-constructed generating plants will employ sewer gas for motive power.

Chief of these is a 1,868,000 disposal plant near Coney Island, N. Y. Treating the sewage from 1,700 acres in and around the famous resort, the plant will provide gas to drive three 300-horse-power gas engines. They will turn over two generators and lessen the danger from pollution to bathers in the Atlantic Ocean.

The Greater Peoria (Ill.) Sanitary and Sewage District proposes to reduce its operating costs with generators driven by an engine which derives its power from the digesting tanks. For a $84,436 investment, PWA engineers estimate, the sanitary district will cut its annual power bill more than $25,000.

Faced with suits by riparian dwellers along the Neuse River, Durham, N. C., will eliminate raw sewage with a $760,000 sewage disposal plant. Gas from the project will drive two generating units.

Animals Gone Wild Prove Puzzle in Hawaii

HONOLULU (P)—Territorial authorities are considering the advisability of asking the U. S. army command here for the use of planes equipped with machine guns to aid in exterminating the wild sheep and goats that prey on Hawaii's forest and pasture lands.

The animals are descendants of those that were once domesticated but later escaped and went back to nature. Recent estimates place their number at 50,000 and their damage to the land is immense.

KING'S ROLE FEATURED IN STORY OF FRENCH REVOLUTION

PARIS (P)—Work has finally begun on the French Revolutionary film, "The Marseillaise," it was announced here by Jean Renoir, famous French director, who is in charge of the film. Its leading figure will not be Rouget de Lisle, author of the French national anthem, nor any of the outstanding Revolutionary leaders of the period, but King Louis XVI himself.

The film, which was originally conceived on gigantic lines and would have required 10,000 feet of film, has been simplified and brought down to a few episodes of the Revolution in 1789 which typify the entire period. It will open with a prologue of Louis XVI and end with the storming of the Tuilleries by the Paris mob.

Seven-Pound Bass Hooked On Missing Pole

FOXBORO, Mass. (P)—It took John Ross two days to catch a seven-pound and 24-inch bass.

Ross went fishing and left his pole against a fence. When he returned the pole was missing.

Swimmers found the rod two days later entangled in weeds. The bass was on the end of the line.

Ringgold and Garden Valley schools entered representations of still life, while Brandon school had a display of paper-cut posters.

Blue ribbons or first prizes were awarded to the following pupils:

Carolyn Wallace, Oak Hill school, for a show card color poster; Lila Brown, Live Oak school, for a hand-built and hand-dressed doll; June Parker, Fairplay school, for a puppet; Irving Marks, Missouri Flat school won two blue ribbons one of which was for the best use of scrap leather while the other was for a model sailing boat; Barbara Hook, Camino school, for an attractive sample of weaving; Nellie Crosby, Camino school, for an ingenious hand-built top; Arthur Williams, Camino school, for a toy wagon.

These pupils won second premium awards or red ribbons; Darrell Meyers, El Dorado school, for handwriting; Clifford Thiele, Missouri Flat school, for an excellent representation of still life; Geneva Ross, Camino school, for a quilt; Louise Eberhart, Penobscot school for a pen and ink representation of still life; Betty Martin, Fairplay school, for a puppet; Dolores Oates, Deer Valley school, for weaving; Irving Marks, Missouri Flat school, for a model plane; and Edith Le Vitt, Blairs school, for drawing depicting a school girl and her wardrobe.

The Live Oak school was awarded a plaque for the best unit of work, while the Cave Valley and the Springvale schools were awarded white ribbons for their respective displays.

Parsons Will Attend Legion Meeting

The colors of El Dorado Post No. 119, American Legion, will be carried in the annual parade at the National American Legion convention at New York City by Bert Parsons, who left Wednesday to attend the convention. Parsons has taken a month's leave from his duties as Junior Forester on Eldorado Forest and will combine his attendance at the convention with a visit to his parents at Dead River, Maine.

Mrs. Lilla Zeisz left on Wednesday for Oakland to spend some time with her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Simas, and her grandson, Bobby.

VICTIMS—Bodies of victims unable to escape from an aerial bombardment in Shanghai, China, litter this street. Many thousands of persons have lost their lives in the undeclared war waged by Chinese and Japanese in and around the ancient Chinese city. China has reported about 200,000 available fighters in the Shanghai area, where fighting has raged for upward of a month.

Mrs. H. P. Blanchard Is Summoned

The funeral services for Mrs. Glenna A. Blanchard, beloved wife of H. P. Blanchard, who died Monday at a San Francisco hospital, were held on Wednesday morning from her late residence. Thereafter the body was removed to Sacramento for interment at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at East Lawn.

Mrs. Blanchard had been a hospital patient for several days, having recently submitted to a major operation.

She had visited Placerville numerous times with her husband and was beloved and held in high regard by all who knew her. The many friends of Mr. Blanchard, who is a son of the late Superior Judge George Blanchard, of this county, will extend the sympathy of the community to him in his great bereavement.

Vagrant Lightning Bolt "Brands" Farm Women

IDAHO FALLS, Ida. (UP)—A vagrant lightning bolt entered the front door of a farm house near here, knocked Lorin Burrows unconscious and artistically decorated his wife and Mrs. Ruth Straley with burns. The bolt left a grapevine burn on Mrs. Straley's back, scorched an imprint of Mrs. Burrows' sweater on her back and burned a reproduction of her wrist watch on her arm. Then it wandered out the back door, taking the doorknob with it.

SHEEP DEMONSTRATION MEETINGS SET FOR NEXT WEDNESDAY

Dr. Ray Mills, veterinarian with the state Department of Agriculture, was in Placerville Tuesday completing arrangements for a sheep parasite control meeting, to be held in the county on Wednesday of next week.

According to the Farm Advisor's office, the day's sessions will be divided into two meetings. The morning gathering will be at the William Wulff ranch, near Rescue and will convene at 10 o'clock.

The afternoon meeting will be at 2 o'clock at the Tony D'Agostini ranch, near Aukum.

All meetings are open to sheep men and others interested.

Oil Expert Spends Three Days In Placerville

Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week the Cannon Chevrolet Company is introducing Mr. T. G. Rader, California field representative for the Quaker State Oil Refining Company of Oil City, Pa., to their customers and to the motorists of Placerville and El Dorado County.

Mr. Rader is a lubrication expert and will be only too glad to answer questions that might be troubling motorists and will personally supervise demonstrations for car owners in the proper lubrication of their automobiles.

Miss Mollie Bemis of Oakland, is here visiting Miss Mary O'Donnell and Mrs. Donahue.

City Police Officer D. W. LeBourveau leaves Wednesday evening on his annual vacation of two weeks, which he will spend at Lake Tahoe.

Dr. and Mrs. L. J. Anderson returned Tuesday evening from a ten-day vacation by automobile which took them as far north as Vancouver. Dr. Anderson reports Washington farms as looking exceptionally well kept.

Fritz Schneiber of the Logtown district, was a caller at the courthouse on Wednesday.

Miss Hazel Davey is on vacation this week from duties at the Robinson fountain and is reported as visiting relatives at Chico and at Salinas.

We learn that Bobby Allen came up from Oakland to join his former classmates in the Placerville grammar school orchestra, in playing at the state fair on Monday and Tuesday of last week.

Stockmen of the county may be glad to know that Dr. Gierke, formerly with the state Department of Agriculture, is now resident in El Dorado County at Omo Ranch. Dr. Gierke is on leave from the state department and is interested chiefly in rebuilding his health, although we understand his services may be available to livestock men who have problems, provided he can assist without endangering his health.

Merchants In Meeting

committee to take over the planning of arrangements for Thanksgiving and Christmas time merchandising promotions, including the proper decoration of the town for the latter season. This committee is to be named by the chairman within a few days, with instructions to make a full report of activities planned at the October meeting.

A discussion on the proposed freight rate change that is to be aired at a Railroad Commission meeting in San Francisco on September 29th, was held, resulting in the adoption of a resolution protesting such a change.

Chairman M. T. Kelly opened the discussion on the proper way of reporting a fire, with the result that J. G. Hearn, manager of the local telephone exchange, explained the proper way is to call the number of the fire house, number 299, which is listed in the directory, or to say to the operator, "I wish to report a fire."

The operator then connects the inquiring party with the fire house and information on location is given direct. The operator then presses the siren button, which at the same time automatically opens the doors at the fire house on Sacramento street.

A committee composed of J. H. Quigley, Clarence Barker and Taylor Butts was appointed by the chairman at the beginning of the meeting to wait upon the city council, in session at the time, to determine assessment, changes in tax rates or any change in the tax structure effecting the merchants of Placerville. The committee returned and made a report to the association, just prior to adjournment.

Ten new members signed the roster, bringing the total membership to approximately 50 and $7.00 was collected on a "give if you please" basis for the payment of small bills and the purchasing of necessary supplies for the secretary.
